We at Corrib RFC are appealing for urgent help after we fell victim to a destructive incident that completely devastated the club's new main facility and everything within it; all training equipment, all matchday equipment, squad jerseys and making the training area unusable. The incident now means that 430+ members are only weeks away from pre-season with not even a rugby ball to play with We now need your help – please support our GoFundMe page:

https://www.gofundme.com/f/corrib-rfc-restoration-fund

Together, with community spirit and resilience we will rebuild and continue creating a club that embodies inclusivity and excellence in rugby. Thank you.

Riddle me this:

There are two ducks in front of a duck, two ducks behind a duck and a duck in the middle. How many ducks are there?

(Last week's answer: His parachute)

Did you know:

Trees talk. Their roots are connected through an underground network of fungi (mycorrhizal) that allows them to share resources with each other. They "talk" by transmitting nutrients to one another through the fungi. For instance, a mother tree, or oldest and strongest tree in the forest, will share some of her sugars with smaller, nearby trees.

Headford Dementia Café: Headford's Dementia Café will take place on Monday the 26th June from 11-12:30 in Headford Hall. This month we are having our summer party with local musicians and singers. We will take a break for July and August returning on the last Monday of September. Tea/coffee and cake will be provided. Eileen Mohan

My dear neighbour Eileen Mohan passed away last Friday, June 16th. She was 78.

Eileen lived just over the field behind my house, on a quiet country road with grass growing up the middle. She used to call it the dual carriageway.

Eileen was well known around Headford in her little red car with the L plates front and rear. She parked where she parked, and the Guards just smiled.

Over the course of the last 15 years or so, I would often meet her on those mornings that the dog and I ventured out for a walk. Eileen loved a good chat, and always had news from around the neighborhood.

We talked about everything under the sun, including, but not limited to, football, politics, radio, weather, cars, tractors, doctors, and cats. You name it, Eileen had an opinion on it.

She didn't tell me she had been sober for 28 years. Rest well, Eileen. Morning walks won't be the same. (By Kevin McNicholas)

A Word in Your Ear...

President Michael D. Higgins set the cat among the pigeons (again!) this week. No doubt it was a deliberate ploy on his part to skew the debate on neutrality in a particular direction. He detected a 'drift towards NATO' and he didn't like it! (He never did, incidentally. This debate predated his move to The Park by many years.) The more belligerent disciples from the left lined up to support him.

A couple of years ago the phrase Virtue Signalling started appearing in articles and posts and soon achieved ubiquity. It is roughly defined as someone expressing an opinion that is designed to garner approval from people and make them look morally superior. The virtue signaller doesn't necessarily have to do anything about the issue. They just have to let everyone know they are thinking about it. Their opinion can even be disguised in the form of a negative, such as "I hate 4 by 4's" (which really means "Like all good people, I am environmentally conscious").

It's a clever term and its appeal is easy to grasp. For as well as being pithy, it has the whiff of truth. It's a modern way of calling out people who parade their views and actions to look good or, in old money, someone who is holier than thou. A quick glance at social media shows how appealing the phrase is and how often it is bandied about. There are whole websites and channels dedicated to calling out the hypocrites. With perceived offenders mercilessly policed and exposed. There is no shortage of stones being thrown.

The trouble is, the phrase has become toxic. It's too often used as a lazy put down that can lead to a scatter gun stoning of all kinds of people; it's become a weapon that stigmatises responses that are sometimes genuine and potentially virtuous. Worse still, the phrase infects anyone who uses it with the very things they are calling out. To accuse someone of virtue signalling is to commit two sins for the price of one: you are essentially making a judgement - about someone's actions or inactions, whilst at the same time vainly puffing yourself up at their expense. The phrase makes hypocrites of us all.

Virtue signalling is really a new term for a very old practice, one that goes back to the cave and can be witnessed in any primary school playground or democratic parliament. It was categorically addressed by Jesus in his warning to beware of practicing our righteousness in front of people in order to win their approval. Don't make a great fanfare of your good deeds, he said; instead, if you can, give in secret because God sees your actions and your virtue does not go unnoticed.

Ultimately, a virtuous person shouldn't care whether their good deeds are seen or not. Years ago, as 'family man' came to the priory door in Galway and told me he was struggling to pay his rent and his bills. I knew the man, and I knew him to be genuine. Unfortunately, I was in no position to help him myself at that time. But I did confidentially 'put out feelers'; I mention his plight to a few trustworthy parishioners, without revealing his identity. Within the week, someone posted a thousand Euro in cash through my letter box. It came anonymously, without fanfare or even a note.

I tried to find out who had given me the money, even asking a couple of 'worthy suspects' whether they the guilty ones. But I have never found out who it was to this day. The invisible donor has remained anonymous. No hint or signal has been offered. But their virtue remains intact.
